

SEYMOUR DAILY REPUBLICAN

VOLUME XXXII NO. 147

SEYMOUR, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1913.

PRICE TWO CENTS

REPUBLICANS SEE VICTORY IN FALL

Clean, Strong, Aggressive Candidates Will Have Places on The Party City Ticket.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS COME FIRST

Democrats Hope to See Strength Divided but May be Sorely Disappointed.

Believing that the affairs of the city should be placed in the hands of competent and efficient men, who will give public business their close attention, the Republican party will put the strongest city ticket in the field this fall that has ever been nominated in Seymour. Because of general dissatisfaction with the present city administration and the desire of a large number of Democrats to support the best ticket in the field, the Republicans have an excellent opportunity to win and intend to nominate men who are worthy of the trust and confidence of the public. Some of the Democrats are talking right out and straight from the shoulder that they are not at all pleased with the present administration and believe that a complete change would be a good thing for the city.

The Democrats, of course, are hoping that the Progressives will nominate a complete ticket, as they know this is their only chance of winning the fall election. They are urging that the two tickets be nominated and are doing everything in their power to keep the Progressives and Republicans from coming to a mutual agreement regarding the city ticket. It is generally known that the Democratic ticket would be at an advantage, if the Republicans, Progressives and Prohibitionists each had a separate ticket, but according to the talk which is now being heard, it is altogether probable that satisfactory arrangements can be made whereby there will be one ticket in the field and this will be selected in the interest of the people.

A number of the Progressives are in favor of joining with the Republicans in the city fight and selecting men agreeable to both sides for the various offices. This would insure the united strength of the Republican and Progressive parties and with the character of men who will be nominated, there will be no question that they would be elected by a big majority.

During the next four years, many important problems regarding the city will come before the council and the mayor, and it is vitally necessary that the right kind of men be nominated and elected. Men who will serve the city as a whole will be needed to decide the questions which will be presented.

A great number of citizens have decided one thing already and that is that the candidates who are elected must stand flatfooted for law enforcement. The time has come, they declare, when all law violations should be given equal attention and they intend to use their influence to secure men who will make the race on a law enforcement platform. Their attitude must not only be known but fore the election but they must be willing and ready to carry out their promises when in office. The day of making pre-election promises is over, they declare, and the officials must make the fight for the reforms which they promise. Men who stand for these principles will be nominated by the Republicans.

Some of the democrats who are wanting places on the city ticket are of the opinion that they will have smooth sailing to the harbor of victory, but from present indications they will encounter many obstacles which they do not expect. The interest in the coming election is increasing each day although it will not be held until November. There is probably a more general demand for a strong, clean ticket than ever before and men who have taken little interest in the city campaign in the past say that they will have a hand in the election before it is over.

THIEF ESCAPES WITH COAT CONTAINING ACCOUNT BOOK

Stolen From the Home of Dr. W. M. Casey—Suspected Stranger Denies All Guilt.

A coat belonging to Dr. W. M. Casey was stolen from the rear porch of his residence on North Chestnut street this morning. In the pockets were a fountain pen, an account book, letters and other articles, which were of personal value to the owner. It was supposed that the coat was taken by a sneak thief or tramp, who was making a house to house canvass for something to eat.

A tramp called at Dr. Casey's home a short time before the coat was discovered missing and it was believed that he had taken it. A description of the stranger was given to the police, who started towards the hobo camp east of the city, where most of the tramps congregate after their rounds for something to eat. The stranger, however, was found in the yards of the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad Company, but denied that he had taken the coat. He said that he had secured employment after he left Dr. Casey's residence and after completing the work, came to the yards. The coat nor none of the articles was found on him.

YOUTSEY'S HILL IS DISAPPEARING

Steep Grade on Columbus Road Near Peter's Switch is Being Cut Down by Railroad Company.

DIRT USED IN MAKING FILLS

Part of High Ground West of Hill Will Also be Removed—Work Satisfactory to Farmers.

Youtsey's Hill, near Peter's Switch, one of the steepest hills between Seymour and Indianapolis, is slowly disappearing. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has purchased the hill and is using the dirt to make the fills which were washed out during the March flood. The steam shovels are at work and gradually the hill is being removed. The Company has purchased the ground for some distance west of the hill and a large part of the high ground will be cut down.

The county commissioners do not seem to know very much about the removal of the hill and it appears that the Railroad Company took it for granted that no objections would be made to cutting down the hill. And it is not probable that any one will complain as it has often been suggested that the work be done. Since the Railroad Company has taken the initiative it will be required to stand the entire cost and will also be required to put the new highway in as good condition as was the old one.

The Columbus road has been blocked where the work is in progress and it will likely be several weeks before the highway is in condition to be used. The Railroad Company will probably gravel the new road which will wind around the high ground on the west. Farmers living in that vicinity are pleased with the improvement as it was often difficult for a team of horses to pull a loaded wagon up the grade.

Much of the railroad track which parallels the highway was washed away during the flood. The Company cut down part of the hill between the tracks and the road, but sufficient dirt was not obtained to complete the fills and it was necessary to purchase more soil. It would have been expensive for the company to have shoveled away the dirt west of the road without cutting the road away and there would have been danger of the soil sliding in the spring of the year. By cutting the road down this trouble will be obviated and a level highway built. The construction of the new road must be satisfactory to the commissioners.

FORMER LOCAL BAPTIST MINISTER CRITICALLY ILL

Rev. Albert Ogle, Well Known in Seymour, Suffers Serious Attack of Heart Trouble.

Rev. Albert Ogle, who was formerly pastor of the First Baptist church, of this city, is critically ill at his home at Indianapolis. He came to Seymour from Mitchell and began his pastorate here in 1871, continuing for fourteen years. During his pastorate the present church building was erected and soon after it was dedicated in October, 1885, he was called to the Franklin church, where he remained as pastor until 1889. During this pastorate the present Franklin church building was erected. At the close of this pastorate he accepted the position of superintendent of missions for the Indiana Baptist Convention, which he held for twenty years, until 1908 when he retired from active work. During his long pastorate in Seymour, probably the longest in the history of the church, he made a large list of friends who will regret to learn of his serious illness.

On Tuesday night he had an attack of heart trouble and the attending physicians regard his condition now as extremely critical. Rev. Mr. Ogle is 74 years old. He was born on a farm in Switzerland County and obtained his early education in the country schools and at Franklin College. He served throughout the civil war in the One Hundred and Seventeenth Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and upon his return home, in 1865, decided to devote his life to the ministry.

He entered the Shurtleff Theological Seminary at Upper Alton, Ill., and, following his graduation there, became the pastor of the First Baptist church at Mitchell, where he served about three years and then removed to Seymour. After his retirement from active work in 1908, he made a trip to California and then returned to Indianapolis, since which time he has made his home with Dr. Ogle. He and Mrs. Ogle celebrated their forty-ninth wedding anniversary April 6.

Rev. Mr. Ogle has four children—Mrs. C. E. Goodell of Granville, O.; R. C. Ogle of New York, and Mrs. H. H. Heinrichs and Dr. A. A. Ogle of Indianapolis.

A telephone message from Indianapolis today stated that the Rev. Mr. Ogle was some better and would probably recover.

LETTER FOR MISS WILSON

Working Women of Delaware Show Appreciation of New Law.

Wilmington, Del., June 5.—The working women of this state are preparing to send Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of the president, one of the nicest letters she has received, when the new ten-hour-work-day-for-women law, goes into effect in about three weeks. It was as the result of a speech made here last winter by Miss Wilson that the legislature passed the bill, which Gov. Miller quickly signed.

The bill limits the hours of employment for women to ten hours daily, except that there can be one twelve-hour day in the week.

FACTORY OF MOTOR TRUCK CO. BURNED

Indianapolis Concern Suffers Loss Estimated at About $50,000 in Destructive Fire.

ORIGIN OF FLAMES UNKNOWN

Surrounding Buildings Threatened—Many Valuable Patterns Were Destroyed.

Indianapolis, June 5.—A costly fire, discovered shortly after midnight, destroyed a three-story brick warehouse building at the plant of the Mais Motor Truck Company, at the Belt and the C. H. & D. railroads, near South LaSalle street; spread to a one-story corrugated iron oil and paint house, scorched the office building and threatened the destruction of the main factory.

For two hours firemen fought a battle of prevention, with an inadequate water supply, to save the main building. They were successful when about 2 o'clock the walls of the warehouse fell and the fire ceased to reach toward the bigger structure.

According to estimates made at the plant the loss will be between $40,000 and $50,000. The principal loss is on patterns on the upper floors of the warehouse and on stock stored there. The loss in structural work is covered amply by about ten thousand dollars, according to A. S. Lockart, secretary of the company.

Mr. Lockart put men to work early today in the ruins and on the books and an effort is being made to estimate more accurately the loss in valuable patterns and in stock. The secretary said an accurate estimate was impossible at this time. The loss is covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

SALES MANAGERS MEET.

Three Hundred Members of National Association in Session.

Philadelphia, June 5.—Bringing with them reports of business conditions in every commercial centre of the United States, more than 300 members of the National Sales Managers' Association have arrived here to attend the annual meetings of that body today and tomorrow.

The fact that there has been much debate recently regarding political changes in the United States, and their relation to general business, gives to the sales managers' meetings here an importance that has not attached to them in years. Word has gone out from the executive committee asking that particular attention be given to reports and to the discussions that are to follow their reception. The roll of membership in the national organization includes the richest firms in the most important lines of the wholesale trade.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE AT WORK ON BIG BASS STORY

Evidence Taken Regarding Statement of Justice of Peace John Congdon About Five Pound Catch.

While the senate lobby committee is at work at Washington, a Seymour investigating committee is making some inquiry into the story related by Justice of Peace John Congdon today that he landed a five pound bass on a recent fishing expedition. Justice Congdon frequently spends some of his spare moments on the banks of the river angling for the sportive bass when not engaged in the more serious capacity of presiding over court. He tells his story in good faith but the fish investigating committee decided to look into the facts before official entry of the catch was made upon the books of the Amalgamated Fish Story Telling Association of Seymour.

Justice Congdon, after very dramatically relating about the great fight in landing the big bass, was asked if anyone had seen it and in proof of his statement he testified that he saw it just after it came out of the water. The members of the investigating committee seemed to frown upon this testimony and were inclined to give it little weight, when Mr. Congdon offered corroborative evidence by stating that Dr. D. L. Prall had also seen him make the catch. The fish investigating committee has filed a temporary verdict that in their opinion Justice Congdon was fishing, but they are withholding all comments on the results of the trip. An adjournment was taken after the morning session and in all probability the next step will be to subpoena witnesses who will testify that they saw Dr. Prall at or about the point where the said catch is alleged to have been made.

BREEDING FOR MILK

R. E. Caldwell Says Grade Cow Must Be Depended Upon for Supply.

In a discussion on "Breeding for Milk," Mr. R. E. Caldwell of the Dairy Husbandry Department, Purdue University Experiment Station, says: "There are several breeds of cattle especially adapted for the dairy business. Of the breeds that are known best in the state of Indiana, the Jersey, perhaps, stands first. The Holstein is gaining in many localities especially in those sections where quantity is desired rather than quality. In spite of the fact that the pure bred cows are adapted to the conditions more particularly than the grade, nevertheless we must depend almost entirely upon the grade cow for our future supply of milk."

In order that the dairymen may increase the production of his herd without undue expense, he may secure the services of a pure bred sire, saving the heifer calves from his best grade cows and in this way increase the annual production of milk and butter fat. A pure bred bull of one of the leading dairy breeds may be secured at a cost of $100 to $300, and through his use increase the average production of butter fat from 25 to 50 pounds per cow per year. In a herd of 15 cows a 50 pound increase on each cow would pay six per cent interest on a $3,750 bull. In addition to the increase in production his surplus stock increases in value due to its greater production and assurance of transmitting desirable qualities.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME

There exists, at some period in every person's life, the desire to own their own home. This is a laudable and worthy ambition.

The Industrious Young Man

Thinks of this almost as soon as he begins to court the girl of his choice. Even before he has asked her to become his wife, he has had in his mind a vision of his sweetheart situated in a beautiful cottage or mansion, as the case may be, located in a pleasant and desirable part of their city.

Every Young Woman

Looks forward to the time when she will live in her own home as the wife of a noble and loving husband. Perhaps the happiest hours of her maidenhood are spent in planning for that new home in which she shall reign supreme and where she will spend most of her days.

Home

Is a sweet sounding word and dear to all humanity. Only two other words are dearer to mankind. Home! Sweet Home! How we love to hear the accents of that sweet word! It is comforting and soothing to the weary traveler. Vacation days are dear to the college boy and girl because they are spent at home. Home is echoed over and over again to all who have at sometime enjoyed the happy environments of a happy home.

Home Is Where

The young man takes his bride. This is where they can talk in secret and unmolested. This is where chubby little hands are raised in sweet innocence for the first time to Papa and Mamma, or it may be the place where some of your loved ones have said good-bye and gone to a better Home. It is where the sorrows as well as the joys of life are shared by a faithful companion. It is where you spend happy moments around the hearthstone with your family and where you lie down to rest and enjoy that quiet composure that comes as a reward in every happy home.

The Selection of a Home

Is all important. While you can enjoy the companionship and association of your own family you can enjoy it much more if you are located in a pleasant neighborhood. You can regulate this yourself by buying or building your home in the right locality. This is a problem for homebuilders to solve and we want to help you solve it.

Westover Addition to Seymour

Is an ideal place for the selection of a home. It is delightfully located as to social, educational and moral surroundings. Every lot is suitable for a home and they are now within the reach of all. Any young man by saving a little of his spending money can soon pay for one. Any laboring man can, on the terms we are offering, purchase one or more of these valuable lots.

If You have Not Bought

Go out now or tomorrow or if you cannot go then be sure and come Saturday to our big sale. This will probably be the last time you will ever get such an opportunity to purchase such lots at such prices and on such terms in Seymour.

Let Us Help You Select a Lot For Your Home.

A YEAR AND A DAY IN THE FEDERAL PRISON

This Is the Sentence In Jack Johnson's Case.

Chicago, June 5.—For violating the Mann white slave act John A. Johnson, negro pugilist, must serve a year and a day in prison and pay a fine of $1,000. Federal Judge Carpenter pronounced this sentence after denying the appeal for a new trial.

Benjamin Bachrach, attorney for Johnson, immediately served notice of carrying the case to the appellate court on a writ of error, and Judge Carpenter suspended execution of the sentence for two weeks, pending the preparation of the necessary papers. Johnson was given his freedom on the $30,000 bail furnished at the time of indictment.

Johnson was convicted on May 31 on seven counts on charges of transporting Belle Schreiber, a white woman, from one state to another for immoral purposes. The Schreiber woman was formerly a manicurist in Milwaukee, and after meeting the pugilist in Pittsburg, accompanied him to the Pacific coast and elsewhere on his fighting expeditions.

Caught at the Crossing.

Lebanon, Ind., June 5.—Struck by a freight car of the T. H. I. & E. traction line, Mrs. Clarence Fall, thirty years old, was instantly killed and her father, James Richey, seventy-four years old, seriously injured. The woman had driven onto the track before noticing the approach of the car. She was hurled thirty feet and the horse was thrown on top of her, crushing out her life.

JAPAN PRESENTS A FRESH APPEAL

Nullification of California Law Demanded.

RACIAL QUESTION INVOLVED

Japanese Government Makes It Very Clear Through Its Latest Note to This Government That Racial Discrimination Involved in California's Action Greatly Overshadows the Legal Phases of the Matter.

Washington, June 5.—The presentation of the second Japanese note in the controversy has revived the latent Japanese issue confronting the United States over the California alien land law. Viscount Chinda, the Japanese ambassador, handed to Mr. Bryan a long communication from his government in which a fresh appeal is made to the United States for the nullification of the California statute.

The secretary of state and Ambassador Chinda were in conference nearly two hours. At the conclusion of their discussion of the note and its contents Mr. Bryan left it at the White House for the president to read. Mr. Bryan discussed it with him today, and it probably will be the chief topic at the cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Though the Japanese government looks to the federal government to render the California statute invalid by some means and to that end discussed, in the note just presented, the legal aspects of the situation, the emphasis of the Japanese protest still remains on the broad racial question involved. The Japanese ambassador made it clear to Mr. Bryan that he and his government still consider the racial discrimination involved as greatly overshadowing the legal phases of the matter.

The dissatisfaction of Japan with the American reply to Japan's original protest was likewise made clear. It can be said that the Japanese note informs the United States that the Tokyo government will not condescend to seek reparation in the federal or state courts of California. This was practically the only solution of the question offered in the note of Secretary Bryan in answer to Japan's original protest.

The ambassador again made it clear that his government will consent to look only to the federal government of the United States for relief from the operation of the California statute.

What the Japanese desire is that the Washington government shall institute proceedings through the courts to attack the California alien land law. The Japanese embassy here has made a thorough search into all cases bearing in any way upon the present issue and has brought this acquired knowledge to bear upon the state department in the latest communication. The fact that President Roosevelt, when the Japanese school question was the question of agitation in California, threw the influence of the federal administration upon the side of Japan is called to the attention of Mr. Bryan. At that time the United States appeared in court in two ways, first as the instigator of a suit and also as "amicus curiae" or friend of the court in a suit entered by a Japanese resident of California. Japan now wants the Washington government to do the same thing in the present instance and thus bring about the nullification of the California law if possible.

It is generally believed here that the president will not give his consent to any legal proceedings against the California statute. In fact it is not seen here how the administration could take the position asked by the Japanese, as it already has declared its belief that the California alien land law is not in violation of the Japanese treaty of 1911. It seems as if there is danger now of the two governments coming to a deadlock over this issue.

BAR ASSOCIATION INQUIRY

The Case of Justice Cohalan Is Being Investigated.

New York, June 5.—The Bar association has commenced an inquiry to determine whether Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan committed or connived at forgery in the first degree. The newest charge against Justice Cohalan is that he obtained Alfred B. Cruikshank, John A. Connolly's lawyer, to alter without Connolly's consent an affidavit that Connolly consented to give when he gave his note for $4,000 to Cohalan. The alteration consisted of the erasure of one phrase, "to the knowledge of deponent," a saving clause that Connolly had put at the end of his affidavit that there were no defenses or counter claims or offsets against the note.

Mr. Connolly was not aware that his affidavit had been altered until May 22, when he forced Justice Cohalan, by threats of suit and exposure, to return the note and original affidavit.

Victim of Nervous Strain.

Miss Zimmerman has been asleep since Tuesday, and the efforts of several doctors have been unsuccessful in arousing her.

KAY PITTMAN

Senator From Nevada First to Open a Lead on Tariff Lobby.

"FOR" IT AS WELL AS AGAINST TARIFF BILL

Two Sides to "Insidious" Lobby Question.

Washington, June 5.—Yielding the strongest evidence yet obtained of the existence of a "numerous, industrious and insidious lobby" against the tariff bill, another day of quizzing by the senatorial lobby investigators carried them more than half way through the list of senators.

Senator Pittman of Nevada, a Democrat, readily agreed with President Wilson's charge that a lobby of this character had been operating in Washington. He named the National Wool Growers' association as conducting a campaign such as President Wilson had condemned, and he did not hesitate to say that the association had attempted to intimidate senators.

Senator Thompson of Kansas, another Democrat, testified that the activities of the sugar refinery people were of a pernicious character, but Senator Thompson's testimony hit the men who are working for, not against, the passage of the Underwood bill.

President Wilson's statement was directed against the lobbyists who were trying to defeat or alter the Underwood bill, and Senator Thompson's testimony opens a new vista. The investigation will now include men who, it is alleged, have been lobbying to bring about the passage of the Underwood bill with the present free sugar and other provisions. Senator Thompson himself has been opposed to free sugar.

"Mike" Murphy Dead.

Philadelphia, June 5.—Michael C. Murphy, the world famous athletic trainer of the University of Pennsylvania, ended a long and gallant fight with death when he passed away at his home here. A complication of throat and lung troubles brought death for "Mike," beloved of thousands of students.

Mexico City, June 5.—Dr. William Bayard Hale is here on behalf of President Wilson to make a careful study of the Mexican situation.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

NEW ONIONS.

WITH new onions available onion lovers have many pleasing dishes to choose from.

Onions are a wholesome food, and it is a pity that it is the fashion to sneer at the vegetable. The confirmed onion eater has generally a good skin if a somewhat objectionable breath.

Stuffed With Meat.

Onions In Surprise.—Take some large onions which have been peeled and washed and put them into a saucepan containing plenty of cold salted water. When the water boils up draw the pan to the side of the stove and let them cook gently until they are parboiled. Drain the onions and carefully remove the centers. Place half a lamb's kidney in each, pressing it well into the onion, put on a baking pan which has been rubbed with some good beef dripping and surround them with small pieces of beef fat. Cover the onions with greased paper and let them cook slowly in a moderately heated oven for four hours, basting them frequently. Serve with thick brown sauce, which should be very savory.

Stuffed Onions.—Take large onions of uniform size, boil until tender, drain, cool, remove the hearts and fill the space with a forcemeat made by chopping together a cupful of bits of ham, a little of the onion heart, salt and pepper to taste and enough cream or milk to which butter has been added to soften the mixture. When the heart spaces are filled put a bit of butter on the top of each, lay the onions in a deep baking dish, pour a little milk or stock about them and bake, covered, for twenty minutes. Uncover, sprinkle crumbs over the top, brown and serve very hot.

Covered With Sauce.

Smothered Onions.—Peel some onions and cut so as to produce rings and put drippings or a little butter into a frying pan. When hot add the cut onions, sprinkle with one teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper, put over a slow fire, cover the pan, but do not let the onions brown before they are cooked through. Turn the rings, being careful not to break them. They should be a light yellow when done. Place them on a layer of boiled rice and cover with cream sauce.

Cream Sauce.—Put one tablespoonful butter into saucepan, melt, add one tablespoonful flour, mix well and add one cupful cold milk and stir until smooth and creamy. Add one teaspoonful salt, a dash of white pepper and boil one minute.

Browned Onions.—Peel and slice three large white onions and soak in milk for ten minutes. Then drain and dry on a towel. Separate the slices into rings, put a dozen or more at a time in a frying basket and plunge into smoking hot fat. Take out as soon as delicately colored, drain for a moment on unglazed paper, turn into heated dish, dust lightly with salt and serve at once.

Best Cough Medicine for Children

"I am very glad to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy" writes Mrs. Lida Dewey, Milwaukee, Wis. "I have used it for years both for my children and myself and it never fails to relieve and cure a cough or cold. No family with children should be without it as it gives almost immediate relief in cases of croup." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is pleasant and safe to take, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. For sale by all dealers.

THE SIMPLE LIFE STRONGLY URGED

Best Way to Combat the High Cost of Living.

EXTRAVAGANCE IS CONDEMNED

Indiana's Successful Conference on Agriculture and Rural Life Went on Record as Favoring a General Crusade for Economic Living and Paved the Way For Other Similar Conferences of a Like Helpful Nature.

Indianapolis, June 5.—Indiana's first conference on agriculture and rural life was brought to a close with a speech by G. I. Christie, head of the agricultural extension department of Purdue university, in which he called on the people of the state to put their shoulders to the wheel and help make the new vocational educational law a success.

He urged those who attended the conference to go back to their communities as missionaries. He said he wished the governor would proclaim a day for meetings in every schoolhouse in Indiana, where the subjects considered by the conference could be discussed.

A crusade for economic living was recommended in the resolutions adopted by the conference. "The much talked of 'high cost of living' is very largely if not entirely attributable to the extravagant habits into which our people have fallen," says the resolution on that subject. "Back to the simple life, to sensible clothing, to clean and healthful amusements; back to the first principles of living, which will in a large measure solve the problem of the 'high cost of living.'"

Having resolved, that a strong, active country church is one of the greatest needs of rural Indiana, the conference recommended that religious bodies work toward consolidation wherever necessary or practical; that young men of the ministry turn their attention to the country church as a field for vigorous growth and large opportunity; that the attention of the people of the open country and the smaller towns and villages be called to the great importance of procuring efficient resident pastors; that all institutions and organizations represented in the conference be called on to lend their efforts and influence to the upbuilding and strengthening of the country church, and that those attending the conference "pledge our best effort to promote the full development of the country church and the rural school, and the building of a contented, abiding, intelligent, successful and prosperous country life."

It was further resolved that "this conference on agriculture and country life recommend to and urge upon all interested associations and individuals to use every possible means to make agriculture more generally profitable, so that the comforts, luxuries, diversions and refinements of life will be within the reach of the mass of the farmers."

The conference endorsed the vocational education law passed by the last Indiana general assembly and went on record in favor of the passage of the Lever agricultural extension bill now pending in congress. The way was prepared for other similar conferences in the future by a resolution recommending that the several organizations represented appoint representatives to co-operate with the agricultural committee of the Indiana Bankers' association in arranging such meetings.

NEW DEPARTMENT OF STATE

Agricultural and Industrial Education
Now Provided For.

Indianapolis, June 5.—The appointment of Z. M. Smith of Purdue to have charge of agricultural education in the public schools of Indiana under the new vocational education law has been announced by President W. E. Stone of Purdue. Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, approved the appointment.

Mr. Smith will receive a salary of $4,250 a year, the same as is paid W. F. Book, a member of the faculty of Indiana university, recently appointed to direct the work of industrial education in the schools. Both will have offices in the superintendent of public instruction, but Mr. Smith will spend a part of his time at Purdue.

Shocking Accident to Child.

Frankfort, Ind., June 5.—Helen, the four-year-old daughter of Ray Caldwell of Circleville, was killed when she fell from a plow. The child had gone into the field and was riding on the plow with her father. The team drawing the plow bolted, jerking her from the seat and throwing her to the ground. The child's head struck the plow knocking her brains out.

Fatal Fall From Window.

Bedford, Ind., June 5.—Mrs. Minnie Johnson, seventy-five years old, fell from the second story window of the residence of her daughter, Mrs. James Byers, and was lifeless when found.

Another Township Goes Dry.

Rochester, Ind., June 5.—The "dry" were successful in the local option election in Henry township, their majority being 138.

MANY STOCKS FALL TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Not Since 1907 Has Wall Street
Been So Flustered.

New York, June 5.—On the stock exchange yesterday stocks had a bad day. In one of the most active days of the year, with transactions of 793,000 shares, accentuated as a big day because of recent excessive dullness, numbers of stocks fell to new low levels.

The excitement was probably with out parallel since the panic of 1907. Stocks were literally poured out regardless of quoted prices, with declines greatest in the standard shares.

One of the main factors making for the liquidation was the overnight news from Washington indicating a radical attitude on the part of the administration in connection with the American Tobacco company and the Standard Oil company. Another influence was the decidedly lower level of prices quoted by London. All advices from abroad indicated increased pessimism not only in London, but at all the continental financial centers.

Inquiry among local banks failed to elicit any satisfactory explanation for the further slump in prices except the note of extreme conservatism sounded in those quarters. The steady decline of the last few weeks has caused a general calling of loans by financial institutions. This as yet has made only slight impression upon the money market, but a stiffening of rates for both call and time accommodations is expected before the end of the month.

Suffs Foul Water Supply.

London, June 5.—Two reservoirs near Bradford have been poisoned by emptying dyeing chemicals into them. It will be necessary to use 80,000,000 gallons of water to clean them. The circumstances indicate that the outrage was the work of the suffragettes.

Aged Bicycle Rider Killed.

Brazil, Ind., June 5.—Robert Butler, sixty years old, was instantly killed when struck by a car on the T. H. I. & E. traction line at a crossing half a mile west of here. He was riding a bicycle and started across the track before he saw the car.

Says She Was Protecting Daughter.

South Bend, Ind., June 5.—Marie Diema Dominick is on trial for her life, charged with the murder of Ralph Tuttle. The woman says that she killed Tuttle because he persisted in attempting to ruin her daughter.

"SUFF" SPOILED THE KING'S RACE

Woman Ran In Front of Royal Mount.

A SENSATION AT THE DERBY

Never in the History of English Racing Was There Anything Like the Daring, Foolhardy Action of Emily Davidson in Focusing the Eyes of Britons Upon the Demands of the British Suffragettes For Recognition.

London, June 5.—In the history of the Derby or of English racing there is no parallel for yesterday's sensational incidents. For turf followers the disqualification of Craganour, the favorite, who finished first, but was disqualified for bumping into Abouzeur, a 100-to-1 shot, in the stretch and the giving of the race to the long-odds horse, was the most important incident, but public attention generally was fixed on the maniacal conduct of a suffragette named Emily Wilding Davidson, aged thirty-five, of Morpeth, Northumberland, who thought she could stop race horses at full gallop by waving her arms in front of them, and as a consequence of her delusion lies unconscious in the Epsom college hospital and is regarded as being in a critical condition with no certainty of her leaving the place alive.

It is only on the assumption that the woman is demented that any sympathy can be evoked for her condition, and "served her right" was the widely heard comment in the confusion that followed the mad attempt which almost cost Jockey Jones, on the king's mount, his life.

It was generally said after the incident that Miss Davidson deliberately singled out the king's horse Anmer for her attack. Those who were close by the woman when the incident happened, and race goers generally, declare that it was impossible for her to have picked out any single horse of the galloping bunch. It was merely a mad attempt to gain the notoriety of "spoiling the Derby" by stopping the race altogether and the collision of Anmer was a mere coincidence.

The horses were thundering around into the stretch in a bunch close to the rail where Miss Davidson was standing with thousands of others. The woman suddenly ducked under the rail and made for the horses, but misjudging the pace, missed the first four or five. She got into a space in front of the following group and raised her hands. The first horse in the bunch missed her. The next, King George's Anmer, caught Miss Davidson with his shoulder and knocked her to the ground with terrific force. She screamed, rolled over two or three times and then lay still. Simultaneously Anmer fell, pitching Jockey Jones over his head. The fact that the woman lay to all appearances dead and that blood was rushing from her nose and mouth undoubtedly saved her some rough handling. As it was the crowd did not interfere and allowed the police to remove both Miss Davidson and Jones.

Emily Davidson was the woman who assaulted a Baptist minister at Aberdeen station, mistaking him for David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer. Whenever she was imprisoned she started a "hunger strike" and generally had been released. She had been found hidden in the house of commons three times and ejected.

WOOD MAKING NO DEFENSE

He Elects to Stand or Fall by the Jury's Verdict.

Boston, June 5.—President William M. Wood of the American Woolen company, having elected to stand or fall by the verdict of the jury as to the truth of the government charges that he conspired with Frederick E. Atteaux and Dennis J. Collins to plant dynamite in Lawrence during the great textile strike, no defense has been offered on his behalf. Counsel for Atteaux now are putting in evidence for him.

Atteaux when called to the stand made sweeping and emphatic denials of all the charges made against him.

A British View of It.

London, June 5.—Sir George Paish, editor of the Statist and an eminent authority on financial matters, speaking of the business outlook, said that one of the contributory causes of the present conditions was the fact that the American investing public had lost its interest.

THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1913.

Whether or not the Seymour chautauqua becomes an annual event depends very largely upon the success of the entertainments this summer. The men who organized the association had in mind only the welfare of the community and desired in this manner to furnish high class entertainments which might be of a benefit to our people. No one has a personal financial interest in the success of the chautauqua. It is for the common good of the people of Seymour and Jackson county. The price of the tickets has been placed as reasonable as possible in order that all might take advantage of the opportunity offered to hear lectures, musical numbers and other entertainments which are really worth while. The chautauqua is a feature of social and educational life that should be encouraged. The programs have been arranged so that all persons attending will hear something that will be of particular interest to them. Cooperation will result in a good chautauqua this summer and will insure similar entertainments in the future.

The Senate Lobby Investigating Committee announces that a powerful lobby is at work at Washington. After this report it appears that the principal work of the Committee is to find out who the lobbyists are and to ascertain what influence they have had. In fact, the investigation will amount to nothing unless this is done. Of course, any man or representative of any firm or corporation has the right to appear before the committees of the Senate but it is the "money lobby" that is detrimental.

With six members on the police force the citizens have reason to expect some real effective work. The work can now be divided among the officers and places of a suspicious character can be watched without interfering with the general work of the department. It is the duty of the council to see that the law is enforced and that all interests be given equal attention.

MARRIED IN ROME.

Daughter of Former Congressman O'Donnell Weds Today.

Rome, June 5.—The daughter of former Congressman James O'Donnell, was married here today to Walter L. Schneider, of St. Louis. Mayor Nathan, of Rome, performed the civil ceremony and Cardinal Falconi the religious ceremony. There have been no American marriages in Italy for the past three years, owing to the discovery of the inability of the American Consul to issue the necessary certificate. The marriage difficulty has now been solved, owing to the acceptance by the Italian authorities of a document issued by the American Embassy saying that the consular certificate required by the Italian authorities cannot be obtained.

This Embassy document was issued for the first time for the O'Donnell-Schneider wedding.

The last program of the Friday Magazine Club will be given tomorrow afternoon before the vacation for the summer. The next meeting will be held June 13, and will be an outing. Mrs. Gertrude Whitmer will be hostess to the Club tomorrow at her home on North Chestnut street.

The responses to roll call will be answered with poetical quotations, after which a paper on "Conservation of our Natural Resources" was given. The Magazine Review will be presented by Mrs. Lillian Hagan and Mrs. Georgia Hopewell will lead the discussion, "What Women's Club are Doing."

INDIANA STUDY CLUB.

The regular meeting of the Indiana Study Club was held this afternoon. Mrs. Susannah Steele being hostess at her home on West Sixth street. Miscellaneous quotations were given in response to roll call which was followed by the business session. Mrs. Fannie Reynolds gave the current events. Mrs. Edith Pfaffenberger read a paper, "The Boy Scouts and the Campfire Girls" and Mrs. Etta Mains gave a review of "A Hoosier Chronicle," by Meredith Nicholson. A song, "Indiana," by Mrs. Olive Thomas was followed by the reading of poems by Mrs. Stella Barbour and Mrs. Olive Comer.

ENTERTAINED.

Miss Alma Matt, entertained the B. D. Club Wednesday evening at her home on East Fifth street in honor of Miss Emma Krueger, a June bride. A seven o'clock dinner was served and Miss Krueger was presented with a silver tray.

For the entertainment of the guests a "Dutch Wedding" was given in which the bride-to-be acted as the bride, and chose her attendants. After the "wedding" the honeymoon consisted of a trip to Mysteryville, in which all took part. Miss Krueger will soon become the bride of Rev. Carl Hackman, of the state of Washington.

WEDDING GUESTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Minor Tilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Kennick, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Farrell, Mrs. I. T. Tinkle and Miss Harriet Freeman of Greenwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Tilson and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vest of Franklin, came this afternoon to attend the Tilson-Day wedding and were guests for supper of Mrs. Zelma Leas.

KAISER'S SILVER JUBILEE ON JUNE 15 TO BE A GALA EVENT

Six Weeks' Festivities Throughout Empire Began When Princess Was Married.

"War Lord" Kaiser Is Called, but His Reign Has Been One of Unbroken Peace.

JUNE 15 will be a gala day throughout the German empire and among Germans residing in many other lands, for it will be the twenty-fifth, or silver jubilee, anniversary of the crowning of Emperor William.

It will be more than a single holiday. It will be the climax of six weeks of celebration, which began when the kaiser's only daughter, Princess Victoria Louise, was married to Prince Ernest August of Cumberland May 24.

As soon as the royal wedding festivities were ended the ceremonies in connection with the celebration of the kaiser's silver jubilee began.

The program for the silver jubilee was arranged a long time in advance of the royal marriage. It includes, among other big and interesting events, a series of festival performances at the Royal Opera, the composers represented being Gluck, Mozart, Beethoven, Meyerbeer, Strauss and Wagner, and the dedication by the kaiser of the new Berlin Olympic stadium in Grunewald forest, with about 50,000 athletes from all parts of the empire in attendance.

Wilhelm II., emperor of Germany and king of Prussia, has been called by one of his subjects the most popular man in Europe, and there seems to be a general agreement among most Europeans that the rather sweeping eulogy is true.

A reason for the kaiser's popularity may be that, notwithstanding his common appellation of "war lord," he has been a force for peace ever since he took the throne.

The influence of the kaiser and his military force, the greatest standing army of modern times, has dominated all of Europe in a sense for many years. The kaiser more than any other man is in a position to determine whether Europe shall be at war or at peace. And yet Emperor William's twenty-five years on the throne have been entirely undisturbed by the thunders of war.

A Visit From Carnegie.

In recognition of this transformation of the "war lord" into the "peace lord," America's prime advocate of peace, Andrew Carnegie, who has spent untold sums in furthering his plans for the abolition of war, recently made arrangements to visit Berlin and offer the kaiser his congratulations.

Throughout his remarkable reign the kaiser has in a great number of cases preferred the olive branch to the sword. His military he does not seek to disguise. He is not ashamed of it for a moment. But at the same time he believes in peace, and his military spirit comes from his belief that if a nation would have peace it must be perpetually prepared for war.

Throughout his reign he has emphasized this belief in his many speeches which he has made dealing with the subject.

Although he is forever encouraging patriotism in Germany, he is as constantly urging the putting of that patriotism to civilizing and commercial uses rather than to the mere cult of arms.

One of the most famous speeches ever made by this great military genius was delivered to the officers of the Landwehr. In it he said:

"The fatherland expects of you, in the first place, not martial laurels, but meritorious activity as citizens. It counts upon you to stand true at the side of the German nation, and especially of German youth, with counsel and deed and exemplary character."

"Such championship of the ideal values of life will render you all the more efficient for the performance of your military duties on the battlefield, too, if the fatherland should compel."

The life of this great emperor has been a most interesting one. He is the chief magistrate of a great nation—one of the most powerful nations of the modern world. At the same time he is the father of an exceptional family mutually devoted and fondly in love.

Whether his sensible advocacy for peace, coupled though it may be with a wonderful preparedness for war, has come from his love for his family which has softened him a great deal, or from his love of country would be hard to say.

Love of Family.

The kaiser's love of his family and the high idealism to which he has always been steadfast have had few bet-also as totally lacking any presence of malice. And so he has been able to preserve peace.

Despite his fifty-four years and his natural impetuosity and perhaps sanguinity, he is always willing and eager to listen to reason and can be persuaded by logical arguments. This willingness to listen to reason has preserved peace for Germany during the twenty-five years of this ruler's reign and promises to continue to do so.

Decorations at Berlin.

With the exodus of the visitors who went to Berlin for the wedding, the city began divesting itself of the wedding array, only to don more elaborate festive attire for the jubilee celebration.

The scale on which the preparations are being carried on is almost astounding. With all its temporary decorations added to its natural beauty, Berlin, on June 15, will be truly a wonder city. It is estimated that not less than $100,000 will be spent in decorating Unter den Linden alone.

The kaiser has intimated that he does not desire to receive personal gifts on the occasion of his jubilee and has asked those who wish to celebrate the event by gifts to make them to educational, charitable and philanthropic institutions.

After the jubilee festivities the emperor will go to Kiel for the annual yachting regatta, which will occupy his attention until the end of June.

From England comes the report that the kaiser will visit that country in August. He will be accompanied by the biggest warships of his fleet, it is said, and King George will meet him off Spithead with the principal British battleships and cruisers.

After the sovereigns have reviewed the combined fleets they will proceed together to London, according to report.

Emperor William was born Jan. 27, 1859, the son of Emperor Frederick

III. and Empress Victoria, princess royal of Great Britain.

According to the traditions of his house, he received a thorough military training, which was begun when he was still a child. At the age of ten he was made a second lieutenant, and in 1874 he entered the gymnasium at Cassel.

Three years later he was made a first lieutenant and entered the university of Bonn, where he studied until 1879, when he entered the military service.

Through the death of his grandfather he was raised to the rank of major general. He was elevated to the throne in 1888.

The kaiser, then the crown prince, was married Feb. 27, 1881, to the Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Angensteinburg, who was born Oct. 22, 1858.

Of the seven children born to the royal couple the crown prince, Frederick William, is perhaps best known to Americans, although he has not visited this country. He was born May 6, 1882.

In 1902, on the occasion of the launching of a yacht built for him in this country, the kaiser sent his brother, Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, to the United States as his official representative. The kaiser's attitude and his gifts to the American people at that time gave the visit international importance.

REBUILDS THE "MISSING LINK"

Science Reconstructs Model of the Oldest Skull.

Woman Whose Bones Were Used May Have Lived 50,000 or 100,000 or Even 200,000 Years Ago, but Probably in the Pliocene Period—A Half Human, Half Simian, Being.

A scientifically reconstructed skull of the oldest woman in the world is now on exhibition at the Natural History museum in South Kensington, London.

It was the discovery of the fragmentary remains of the original skull that sent such a thrill of excitement throughout the scientific world last autumn, when Charles Dawson unearthed it from a pit at Piltdown common, Sussex, and a great company of distinguished professors gathered at the meeting of the Geological society, where the discovery was first made public.

The skull is not an object of beauty, even as skulls may be regarded as varying in gracefulness, but in her defense it may be pleaded that the woman was semi-simian, combining in herself traits of the human being with characteristics of the ape.

Scientists regard her as the one specimen extant of the "missing link." Her age eludes one even now. She may have lived 50,000 years ago or 100,000 or even 200,000, for geologists agree to differ upon so delicate a subject, but it is believed that she belongs to the Pliocene period.

Important Discovery.

The discovery of her remains forms one of the most romantic incidents in the history of geological research, and, although a pilgrimage of scientists to England to inspect them is not predicted this year, no geologist from Europe or America who finds himself in London this summer will be likely to miss the opportunity of having a call upon her at the museum.

The actual remains are not exhibited to the general public. Savants and students may examine them, however. These remains comprised no more than a portion of the left side of the skull and a piece of the lower jaw, but with these as a guide Frank Barlow has succeeded in reproducing what is regarded as a faithful and trustworthy model of the whole by careful observation and scientific deduction.

The task of making the model occupied Mr. Barlow many weeks. By noting the formation of the left half of the skull, he explained, it was possible to build up the right side with a considerable degree of certainty. On the same plan the lower jaw could be completed with a sure touch, and the conformation of the whole skull could thus be satisfactorily established.

The appearance of the facial bones and the upper jaw is largely conjecture, but the jaw bone is in every respect characteristic of that of the chimpanzee, and Mr. Barlow said that in constructing the model he followed the logical course, providing it with a dental equipment of the simian type.

No modern human being possesses teeth of the size and shape of those seen in the model, and, more than anything else, the powerful teeth of the heavy under jaw serve to emphasize the apelike characteristics of this primitive being.

Very Small Brain.

A cast of the brain taken from the restored skull is also on view. While the brain cavity of the normal human being measures more than ninety cubic inches, this Pliocene skull has a capacity of no more than 64½ cubic inches, showing that the brain development in modern man is more than one-third greater than that of her semisimian ancestor.

From the greater development of the brain at the back of the left lobe is judged that the individual was right handed, another item in the chain of evidence proving that the skull is of the human species.

There can be little doubt that the Piltdown woman's remains are the earliest yet uncovered, older than the fragments found at Neanderthal, Prussia, in 1856, or even the jaw found at Heidelberg in 1907.

Some scientists, Professor Kraitsch among them, hold that this primitive type was driven back and extirpated by the higher race of man which existed contemporaneously with it on earth. There is, however, no evidence to support this view.

GOOD FOOD, NO DRINK HABIT

Duchess Says Cooks Can Do More Than Lawmakers.

The Duchess of Marlborough in an address before the pupils of the St. Pancreas School For Mothers, in London, said she believed a well cooked meal is a more effective means of stopping the drink habit than any amount of legislation.

The incapacity of many women as cooks and their inability to bring up children properly, she said, are largely responsible for unhappy homes, and she hoped for the spread of the system of mothers' schools for the purpose of supplementing the primary domestic teaching of girls in the elementary schools.

Little Daniel Brady, aged six, of Cheyenne, Wyo., was saved by a quick and delicate operation after he was kicked in the head by a horse.

The surgeons quickly hammered a ten dollar gold piece into a plate 2 2/3 by 1 3/4 inches in diameter and cut four silver rivets from four silver dimes. These were sterilized, the plate riveted to the child's skull with the silver pins and flaps of skin sewed over the patch.

WILL STUDY RADIUM AS A CANCER REMEDY.

Harvard Medical School to Make Special Investigation.

The effect of radium in the treatment of cancer is to be made the subject of a special investigation at the Harvard Medical school, under the direction of Dr. William Duane.

For the present the experiments will be conducted in the Collis P. Huntington building, but in the near future a special building is to be erected adjoining the medical school and devoted entirely to the work of radium investigation.

Dr. Duane has studied in the laboratory of Mme. Curie, the discoverer of radium, and has been in touch also with the work of the Radium Institute in London.

The investigation is to be made under the general supervision of the cancer commission of Harvard.

An announcement of Dr. E. E. Tyzzer, director of the commission, says a group of investigators is being assembled to attack the problem of cancer treatment from various points of view.

A NEW KIND OF TELESCOPE.

Will Have Much Larger Field Than Ordinary Instrument.

Professor W. A. Cogshall, head of the Indiana university department of astronomy, is building a new telescope for the observatory. The instrument will have a much larger field than that of the ordinary reflecting telescope and be of much less length in proportion to the diameter.

In the telescope now in use only one reflector is used, with a parabolic curve as the reflecting surface. The field of such a telescope is of good definition in the center only and commands a field of from one to two degrees. The length of the entire telescope, as a rule, is between five and seven times the diameter.

The new telescope will have from four to five times as large a field as an ordinary telescope of the same focal length. It is to be two feet in diameter, six feet in focal length and will include a field of three degrees.

UNION OF WOMEN'S MAIDS.

"Lacer's Arm" Caused by Lacing Tube Gowns on Corpulent Figures.

Because there are too many hooks, theater parties, dogs and gowns among their mistresses and an epidemic of "lacer's arm" among maids the latter will form a new union in Chicago or affiliate with the Household Workers' union recently organized.

They say they are in favor of a new union to be called the "Maids and Valets' association," and will ask the Women's Trade Union league to give them a separate charter. It is the "hookists," private hairdressers and private manicures who wish to form the new union.

The "hookists" say that "lacer's arm" is caused by the operation of placing a 250 pound woman inside one of the new gowns designed for the lines of a woman weighing 120 pounds. The symptoms are a swelling of the muscles of the upper arm, near the shoulder, followed by lameness.

NEW LANGUAGE IS DEVELOPED

Linguist In United States Pension Office Is Inventor.

HE CALLS IT "VELTLANG."

It Is Really a Universalized English, With a New Alphabet, New Numerical Additions and a Series of Markings to Denote, Simply and Easily, Length of Vowels and Other Points.

"Veltlang" is the name which has been given to a new language which Professor Frederick J. Braendle, official translator of the United States pension office, has invented. Professor Braendle describes his language, as the name indicates, as a "world language."

In point of fact it is a universalized English, but with a new alphabet and new numerical additions and a series of simply conceived marks to signify the length of vowels and the combinations of consonants.

Professor Braendle is a linguist of remarkable experience. His daily employment at the pension office makes necessary familiarity with not less than sixteen modern languages. He is proficient in and uses with equal facility eight languages.

Those at his instant command are English, French, German, Italian, Norwegian, Swedish, Dutch and Spanish. Then, too, he speaks Portuguese. But he does not consider that any particular requirement.

"It is practically Spanish, anyhow, and not worth dignifying as a separate language in cataloguing one's accomplishments," said Professor Braendle.

No Oriental Pensioners.

In addition to these tongues, Professor Braendle has Russian, Bohemian, Polish, Turkish, Greek, Latin, Arabic and Hebrew or Yiddish right at hand for immediate use in the service of the pension office, and, besides that, he understands and translates Chinese and Japanese, although not in the line of his duty, for Uncle Sam has no Chinese or Japanese pensioners to give the professor practice.

"Veltlang" is the development of years of study, according to its creator. It is not a made to order language in the same sense that Volapuk and Esperanto were worked up from a series of selected words of other languages with certain modifications of spelling and the regularizing of all verbs and a universally regular system of declensions for nouns and adjectives.

"Veltlang" is a natural language, or as nearly so as such a thing can be developed in a single generation and out of one brain. This is the way Professor Braendle argues.

"Five thousand words constitute a thoroughly workable knowledge of any language for commercial or ordinary literary uses. When I say this I mean 5,000 basic words. One may get along in any language with a conversational knowledge of about 1,800 words, but I have assumed for actual uses that 5,000 is a reasonable equipment."

"In constructing 'Veltlang' I have taken 3,000 of the words right out of English. English is today, if not the most universally spoken, at least the most broadly spoken language of modern times. 'Veltlang' is English with its spelling altogether simplified and its grammar likewise. I am already carrying on correspondence with friends whom I have interested in the view that it is the most remarkably simple new language with which they have ever been called upon to familiarize themselves. After they have learned the alphabet the rest is exceedingly simple."

Only Twenty Letters.

"The alphabet which I have invented as the vehicle for 'Veltlang' consists of twenty letters, for which I use in the case of all vowels curvilinear characters and all the consonant sounds rectangular characters.

"Diphthongs and double vowels are single characters which are, in reality, combinations of their original components. Q, W, X, Y and Z are in general practice eliminated in writing or printing 'Veltlang,' but there is ready substitution for them in the written language through the combination of the used consonants.

"For example, X is in reality KS, and Z is in reality CS, and this is easily reproduced by using these consonants. For the sake of convenience, however, I include the equivalent characters for the eliminated letters, which may be used if desired."

The new language may be readily acquired by orientals, particularly the Chinese and Japanese, whose written language is ideographic. In the course of his work for the pension office Professor Braendle has developed through a sort of glorified card index system a universal dictionary.

His most daring feat in the handling of a language has been the construction of a wholly new lexicon system for the Chinese and Japanese ideographs.

More Babies, Fewer Dogs.

The number of babies in Chicago is increasing and the number of dogs is lessening, recent statistics show. There were 450 more births in the city during the first quarter of 1913 than during the same period last year, while 797 fewer dogs were licensed during the quarter than in the corresponding period of 1912.

CHAPTER V.

To Find Out the Truth.

KAYTON broke off with a nod as Mrs. Beauregard, the cook, waddled into the room. She was a round faced old negress with woolly gray hair, strong teeth, still white, and a mouth of amazing breadth, depth and construction. In build she followed the line of a squat and badly constructed cylinder. In motion she resembled a venerable black duck. She wore a neat blue calico dress and white apron, and about her head was the inevitable kerchief of the negro serving woman. But Mrs. Beauregard's was a snowy white. She rolled her eyes ponderously about the room and finally brought them to rest on the great detective, who was surveying her critically.

"Am yo' de gen'l'man wants to see me?" she inquired heavily, her arms akimbo and one broad foot advanced, giving her a singularly truculent air. Kitty hastily vanished, and Kayton smiled upon the old negress.

"Are you Mrs. Beauregard?" he inquired.

"Yes, suh, Ah am," she replied, voice and expression being by no means encouraging. "An' Ah's heah to say Ah don't wanna see yo'. Ah's seen nuff o' you p'leecemen. Ah observe ebery time anythin' bad occurs in this heah world yo' allus tries to put it on to cullud folks."

"How long have you lived here, Mrs. Beauregard?" inquired Kayton courteously, ignoring the arraignment of the police.

"H'm!" sniffed the cook contemptuously. "How long has Ah libed heah? Lawd o' lobe, Ah allus libed heah! Ah libed heah eber since Miss Mary wuz a l'il child. What business is it o' yo's how long Ah libed heah?" And she glared upon Kayton.

"Well," returned Kayton, "if you've lived here so long you must have been greatly attached to Mr. Argyle."

The old darky swelled with wrath. "Don't yo' try to wish no scandal on me," she warned him. "Ah wah'n no mo' 'tached to Mr. Argyle dan Mr. Argyle war 'tached to me. Dere wah'n nobody else in dis heah town could cook for him."

"How do you know that?" asked Kayton.

"And I suppose you were just as much attached to Miss Mazurett?"

"Doan' yo' figger yo' can make me say nuffin' 'gainst Miss Mary?" stormed Mrs. Beauregard, shaking her fist at him. "Come 'round' heah tryin' to work up mo' lies 'gainst dat chile fo' de news-papers! Ah know nuff to know she didn't done nuffin'."

Kayton bit his lip. "Young Mr. Argyle," he said gravely, "has brought me here to find out the truth. If you know anything that will help to clear Miss Mazurett you had better tell it."

The old negress was impressed by both words and manner and regarded him doubtfully for a moment. Then she wheeled heavily upon the butler.

"Is dis heah man lyin' to me?" she demanded fiercely.

Finley shook his head. "There's tricks in all trades, Mrs. Beauregard, but I'm thinkin' the truth can't hurt best tell 'im."

Kayton nodded. "Well, what do you know?"

"Ah know," declared the cook defiantly. "Miss Mary hadn't nuffin' to do wid dat 'sassation, 'cause she was on de upphub foh all de time."

"How do you know that?" asked Kayton.

"'Cause Ah done see her dere."

"Ah was crawlin' up dem kitchen stairs, an' deh was a light up deh, an' Ah look up an' Ah see her."

"What brought you upstairs?"

Mrs. Beauregard gathered up huge handfuls of her apron and rolled her eyes, swallowing visibly before she replied:

"Well, suh, Ah was waked up by a pow'ful row in de middle ob de night. 'Peached like somebody must ha' fell down de stairs. Ah was seached cophse cold. An' den Ah wait an' lissen an' lissen, an' Ah don't heah nuffin' mo'. Den Ah reckons Ah better 'vestigate dat commotion. An' her eyes rolled. 'Ah done it!'"

"Did you speak to Miss Mazurett?" interposed Kayton.

"No, suh," returned the old woman, with a violent shake of her woolly head. "Ah wasn't speakin'; Ah was jes' lookin'. Den Ah call 'late Ah mus' dreamt some ob dat noise, so I goes back to bed an' didn't heah nuffin' mo' till mawnin'. An'—she took a long breath—"if yo'll excuse me, mistah, Ah'll go right back to mah bakin'. Yo' all 'pears to fo'get dat folks gotta eat."

"All right, general," nodded Kayton, with a smile, thinking of one of the best generals in the Confederate army who bore the name of the old negress; "go back to your commissariat."

Mrs. Beauregard had started to waddle out, but she wheeled about in warlike fashion.

"What's dat?" she demanded.

"What's dat yo' call me?"

Kayton laughed and waved his hand to her. "All right, Mrs. Beauregard. If I want you again I'll send for you."

Slowly withdrawing her gaze from his mirthful face, as if daring him to say anything more, the cook departed, grumbling half aloud:

"Yo' don't see no mo' ob dis niggah. Come 'round' heah askin' me all dem fool questions. Ah get so—so mingled Ah don't know which Ah's at. Hope to de Lawd yo' all cleah out of dis house an' leave his heah fambly in peace."

When Mrs. Beauregard's menacing growl had died away in the depths of the hall outside Kayton's expression instantly changed, and he looked as if he had never smiled in his life.

"I want to see Miss Mazurett," he said to Finley.

"Miss Mary, sir?" returned the butler, visibly disturbed. "Is it necessary? Could ye not let her be?" He was almost pleading.

"No," replied Kayton curtly. "Will you please go to her at once and tell her I want to see her?"

The old man sighed and shook his head. "I will, sir," he said in funeral tones, and he slowly departed. A second later Kayton was making a swift but minute inventory of the contents of the big antique desk between the windows. Manning looked up as his chief suppressed a low exclamation. He was standing at the other window with a handful of envelopes, from one of which he swiftly abstracted something.

"What have you got there, governor?" inquired Manning. Kayton held up a blank envelope.

"One of these had a new $100 bill in it."

"In the desk?" queried his assistant incredulously. "Looks as if it had been pretty well searched too."

Kayton shrugged his shoulders and his lip curled slightly.

"Yes, Joe," he said gently, "by the police."

Manning grinned as he bent over the little hand satchel and carefully packed away his treasures.

"He must have been going to mail it to somebody," he suggested at last. Kayton was examining the find under a pocket magnifying glass.

"That's possible," he muttered.

"I wonder what stopped him," remarked the other thoughtfully. Kayton was holding the other envelopes up to the light, one after another, in rapid succession. He grinned, and with a perfect imitation of Finley brogue replied:

"If ye knew that an' had yer supper ye could go to bed."

Manning laughed and, righting the table, pushed it back to the center of the room and replaced cover and books.

"I've got all these, governor," he said. Kayton nodded.

"Better start now with the servants' finger prints, Joe. Get both hands. What is it, Finley?"

"Mr. Hurley's here, sir," said the butler from the hall door.

"Is Miss Mazurett coming?" demanded the detective.

"I'm going to her now, sir."

"Well, don't delay any longer," ordered Kayton, with a touch of sternness. "Tell Mr. Hurley to come in, Joe," he went on rapidly as Finley left. "Get out your pad. I want to send a telegram to the San Francisco office."

Put this down in cipher," Joe stood with pencil poised as his chief dictated.

"Look up Mrs. John Mazurett; maiden name, Nellie Marsh. Died in Trisco about twenty years ago. Get that off, Joe."

"The girl's mother?" ventured the assistant.

"Yes," nodded Kayton. "I want to know about that scandal. This thing has happened through the girl some way or another."

Hastening out, Manning passed Mr. Hurley in the doorway. The lawyer entered eagerly, stripping off his gloves and held out a hand to the famous detective with a cordial smile.

"Good morning, Mr. Kayton," he said pleasantly. "I'm Mr. Hurley—Mr. Argyle's lawyer."

"Yes," said Kayton quietly, as he shook hands. "I'm glad to meet you."

"I'm glad you've come in on the case," returned the lawyer, in a sincere manner that was in itself a compliment. "I don't doubt you'll clear it all up for us."

"Well, I hope so, Mr. Hurley," said

Kayton modestly. This interchange of compliments was the first trial of foils in which each man was estimating the other, and each felt in the other an antagonist, though they were on the same side.

Mr. Hurley found a chair and settled himself comfortably for a chat. Kayton moved about the room like a restless bird dog as he talked, but occasionally confronting the lawyer and fixing him with a keen gaze.

"I suppose," said the latter, "it will take some time. There are so many ways the thing might possibly have occurred."

"As, for instance?" suggested Kayton instantly.

Mr. Hurley was a trifle taken aback at this sudden challenge, but he replied promptly enough:

"Well, let us suppose that this criminal obtained entry either by the connivance of one of the servants or, possibly, one of them lost a key or in some way that the investigations have not yet disclosed. He is discovered by Mr. Argyle, who threatens him with a revolver and in the struggle that ensues the murder results."

Kayton smiled almost imperceptibly. "And how does your theory account for the fact that throughout this struggle—a struggle, you'll notice, in which several blows were exchanged, judging by the marks on the face and chest—how do you account for the fact that Mr. Argyle made no outcry?"

"His outcries may not have been heard," replied the lawyer readily.

"Very true," nodded Kayton.

"Of course," continued Mr. Hurley, "the argument against the burglar theory is that nothing was stolen, although the burglar may have been frightened away."

"You're convinced, then, that it was a burglar?" asked Kayton.

"Well, ah—no," confessed the lawyer with some hesitation. "I was merely canvassing that idea. There seems to be a lack of motive otherwise, or rather a large discrepancy between the nature of the crime and the character of the only person who might have had a motive."

"Miss Mazurett?" said Kayton in a matter of fact tone.

"Oh, it couldn't be Miss Mazurett," protested the lawyer instantly. "It's incredible that a girl like her could be involved in a thing of this sort. Besides, how was she to know that if he died at that particular moment she would be the sole heir under the will?"

"Oh, the will was secret?" inquired Kayton.

Mr. Hurley hesitated. "Well, now, Mr. Kayton, I'll tell you about that," he said slowly. "My client had an idea that is not uncommon among millionaires. He had an almost morbid apprehension of his heirs waiting to inherit his estate—a somewhat superstitious fear of the concentrated expectations of legatees. In fact, he didn't want any one to know who was fore you make any move or express any opinion or do anything that has a bearing on this case."

"Certainly," returned young Argyle again completely the well bred, self contained young man. "I understand that, Mr. Kayton."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

His Stomach Troubles Over

Mr. Dyspeptic, would you not like to feel that your stomach troubles were over; that you could eat any kind of food you desired without injury? That may seem so unlikely to you that you do not even hope for an ending of your trouble, but permit us to assure you that it is not altogether impossible. If others can be cured permanently, and thousands have been, why not you? John R. Barker, of Battle Creek, Mich., is one of them. He says, "I was troubled with heartburn, indigestion and liver complaint until I used Chamberlain's Tablets, then my trouble was over."

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bellevue, Ohio.—"I was in a terrible state before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached until I thought it would break, I had pains all over me, nervous feelings and periodic troubles. I was very weak and run down and was losing hope of ever being well and strong. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I improved rapidly and today am a well woman. I cannot tell you how happy I feel and I cannot say too much for your Compound. Would not be without it in the house if it cost three times the amount."

CHAS. CHAPMAN, R. F. D. No. 7, Bellevue, Ohio.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

MOSLEMS RECOGNIZE FINLEY'S GOOD WORK

Commander of Faithful Decorates Army Officer.

Constantinople, June 4.—Major John P. Finley, U. S. A., who came here from the Philippines to see if the sultan and the Sheikh Ul Islam, spiritual head of the church, could not prevail upon their Mohammedan brethren there to cease their constant uprisings and settle down, has been highly honored by the sultan. He was decorated with the Order of Medjidieh in recognition of his services to the Mohammedans in the Philippines. The sultan also bestowed upon Major Finley an imperial tiara with an imperial toghra, recognizing him as a religious minister plenipotentiary of the Moros. Such a document is very rarely given and the government only yielded to the wishes of the sultan in the matter after repeated refusals.

The sultan also sent to the American embassy for Major Finley a number of framed inscriptions and other decorations for the mosque at Taluk Sangay, the chief Moslem building in the Philippines.

Had No Money For It.

Indianapolis, June 4.—Plans for contesting the nomination of Joseph E. Bell for mayor at the recent primaries have been abandoned. One of the chief reasons for the failure to bring the suit was a lack of funds on the part of those who proposed to prosecute it.

ECONOMIC LIVING CRUSADE IS URGED

Conference on Agriculture and Rural Life at Indianapolis Closed
Tuesday.

ADDRESS OF GEO. WOODRUFF

Resolution Asks That Farmers Cooperate in Building up Strong, Active Rural Churches.

Indiana's first conference on agriculture and rural life was brought to a close at Indianapolis Wednesday afternoon with a speech by G. I.
Christie, head of the agricultural extension department of Purdue University, in which he called on the people of the state to put their shoulders to the wheel and help make the new vocational educational law a success.

He urged those who attended the conference to go back to their communities as missionaries. He said he wished the Governor would proclaim a day for meetings in every schoolhouse in Indiana, where the subjects considered by the conference could be discussed.

Addresses on "Agricultural Development," by Charles W. Fairbanks, and "Farm Credits," by George Woodruff, the young president of the First National Bank of Joliet, Ill., were features of the afternoon program.

A crusade for economic living was recommended in the resolutions adopted by the conference at the morning session.

"The much talked of 'high cost of living' is very largely if not entirely attributable to the extravagant habits into which our people have fallen," says the resolution on that subject. "Back to the simple life, to sensible clothing, to clean and healthful amusements; back to the first principles of living, which will in a large measure solve the problem of the 'high cost of living.'"

Having resolved that a strong, active country church is one of the greatest needs of rural Indiana, the conference recommended that religious bodies work toward consolidation wherever necessary or practicable; that young men of the ministry
turn their attention to the country
church as a field for vigorous growth and large opportunity; that the attention of the people of the open country and the smaller towns and villages be called to the great importance of procuring efficient resident pastors; that all institutions and organizations represented in the conference be called on to lend their efforts and influence to the upbuilding and strengthening of the country church, and that those attending the conference "pledge our best effort to promote the full development of the country church and the rural school,
and the building of a contented, abiding, intelligent, successful and prosperous country life."

It was further resolved that "this conference on agriculture and country life recommend to and urge upon all interested associations and individuals to use every possible means to make agriculture more generally profitable, so that the comforts, luxuries, diversions and refinements of life will be within the reach of the mass of the farmers."

The conference indorsed the vocational education law passed by the last Indiana General Assembly and went on record in favor of the passage of the Lever agricultural extension bill now pending in congress.

The way was prepared for other similar conferences in the future by a resolution recommending that the several organizations represented op-point representatives to co-operate with the agricultural committee of the Indiana Bankers' Association in arranging such meetings.

Mr. Woodruff, who was a member of the United States commission that investigated the farm credit systems of the banks of Europe, gave three causes for the increased cost of living other than the one named by the conference. He enumerated them as the increasing gold supply, the breaking down of competition and the declining per capita production from the soil.

As a remedy for the first cause, he named increase in wages; for the second, trust regulation and control of middlemen, and for the third, increased available acreage and increased production to the acre. Improved farm finance he declared to be one of the important methods for applying the last named remedy.

Mr. Woodruff described in detail
the farm credit systems of France, Germany and Italy. For immediate results in this country he suggested the passage of a Federal law giving flexibility to the present joint stock credit banks that exist in almost every community throughout the United States.

Provision should be made to permit
the small country bank to rediscount
farmers' notes with the central bank,
thus turning them into prime mercantile paper, good in the international discount markets of the world, he said. This would bring about a great enlargement of short time agricultural credit that would benefit the farmer
almost immediately.

For future uses he recommended
the establishment of state central banks to be co-operatively owned by the individual banks.

"Agricultural mortgage credit
could be developed immediately by the organization of joint stock mortgage banks and permanently by the establishment of a system of co-operative mortgage banks modeled in some respects after the American Loan and Homestead Association,
and in others, after the 'Landshaft-
ten' in Germany," he asserted.

Mr. Fairbanks was introduced by Chairman Goodbar as "a man who has more acres of growing corn than any other man in Indiana."

The former Vice President traced
the development of agriculture in this country and spoke of its increasing importance to the welfare of the nation.

He declared that the United States Department of Agriculture is destined to take precedence over every other department and predicted that the United States will be one of the most densely populated regions on the face of the earth.

"We will soon have all we can do to feed the people of the United States from the products of our farms," he said. "We have got to farm more with our brains than ever before."

Here Mr. Fairbanks took occasion to pay the following tribute to James Wilson, who was secretary of the Department of Agriculture for sixteen years.

"No public servant in recent years has rendered a greater service to the country than he."

As other important instruments in the development of agriculture he listed the agricultural colleges and the agricultural press.

"We of Indiana can congratulate ourselves that we have one of the best agricultural colleges in the United States at Purdue," he said.
"There is no better influence in our agricultural development than a high minded up-to-date agricultural press."

In conclusion Mr. Fairbanks urged the farmers and agricultural leaders of the state to pay more attention to the subject of forestry.

Governor Ralston also spoke,
choosing for his subject "The Relation of the State to Agriculture."

J. D. Lucas, formerly postmaster

on business. This is his first visit to Seymour for more than a year as he has recently recovered from a serious illness. His many friends here were glad to greet him. Mr. Lucas resigned from the postoffice service several months ago because of his health.

DeGolyer & Co., who were given the contract for improving North Walnut street with concrete, will begin the work in a short time. The firm has a large contract at Rushville, but will start on the work here
before that contract is completed.
Quite a number of local men have been working at Rushville and some of them will be returned for the local contract.

The farmers in this vicinity declare that the rain Tuesday afternoon was very beneficial to the growing crops. The shower was local, however, and the rain at Rockford was not heavy enough to lay the dust. No rainfall was recorded in the north part of Redding township and the shower was confined to the territory between Brownstown and Seymour.
No rain fell at Freetown and the farmers in the community say that the crops are in need of moisture.

STARS AND STRIPES SHOWN

For the First Time in Annual Parade
on King's Birthday.

London, June 4.—The Stars and Stripes were seen for the first time at the "trooping of the colors," the annual military spectacle on the Horse Guard parade on the occasion of the king's forty-eighth birthday yesterday.
Old Glory was carried by the Columbia Park schoolboys of San Francisco, who were especially invited to participate in the ceremony. The boys started for France today.

Anatomical.

There are still people in New York who ask policemen to direct them to different places. One such man asked a bluecoat recently if he could tell him
where the office of a certain lawyer
was. When the information was given he said, "Why, my dentist used to be in that office." "Sure a dentist used to be there," said the policeman.
"Well, it's a funny coincidence. They still make an anatomical headquarters of it." "I don't know what the word means, but it sounds fine," replied the officer. "Just this," was the explanation. "I used to go there to get my teeth pulled, and now I'm going there to get my leg pulled." — New York Tribune.

Necks and Legs.

Naturalists assure us that, with a few exceptions, there is a marked equality between the lengths of the necks and of the legs of both birds and quadrupeds. Whether they be long or whether they be short is determined,
it seems, chiefly by the manner in which the animal feeds.

Crocodiles, lizards and fish have practically no necks. Fowls that feed in the water also offer an example of this correspondence between the members, with the exception of swans and geese and some Indian birds, which gather their food from the bottom of pools and must for that purpose have long necks, while the short legs make it easier for them to swim.—Harper's.

Ye Perilous Feat of Laughing and Gaping at Ye Same Time.

There was a church celebration of a rather exciting nature many years ago in Lynn, Mass. The occurrences marking the dedication of the Old Tunnel Meeting House in 1682 are recorded by an eyewitness and quoted in Obadiah Oldpath's "Lin." After the formal ceremony of dedication a feast was held.

Ye dinner was in ye greate barne of Mr. Hood. While we were at table a rooster flew to ye beam over our heads.
Mr. Richardson, ye Newbury minister, in a very loud voice and stately mien proclaimed that tho ye house was a noble temple it yet was but fit casket for ye godly jewel of Lin, where upon a most lusty crow was set up by ye old cock on ye beam, and he flapped his wings, sending ye dust down on to ye table.

Ye companie buried apples at ye misbehaving fowle, but, not being of good aim, did not hit, and with a whirring noise it flew to ye ground as if in disgust.

Mr. Gerrish was in a merrie mood.
Not having his thots about him, he endeavored ye dangerous performance of gaping and laughing at ye same time. In doing so he set his jaws open in such a wise that it was beyond his power to bring them back again. His agonie was very greate, and his joyful laugh was soon turned to grievous groaning.

We did our utmost to stay the anguish of Mr. Gerrish, but could make out but little till Mr. Rogers, who knoweth something of anatomie, did bid ye sufferer to sit down on ye floor
and, taking his head between his legs, turning ye face upward as much as possible, gave a powerful blow and sudden press, which brought ye jaws
again into working order. But Mr.
Gerrish did not gape nor laugh much more, neither did he talk much for that matter.

Both Bad.

er than I am, and he that flatters,

I look into the glass of conscience I see myself disguised by both.—Cowper.

Gallant Volunteer Fireman.

A gentleman who had all the earmarks of a foreign nobleman about him, including the whiskers and the handkerchief up the sleeve, sat in a Broadway restaurant eating one dish
after another until his range of appetite and his marvelous capacity won

"TO THE PUMPS, MEN!"

him the attention of a group of men headed by Mason Peters who were at the next table drinking seltzer.

One order after another—soup, fish,
roast, entree, salad, side dishes—disappeared down the strange gentleman's throat. He had eaten enough for three and still was not satisfied.

He whispered to the waiter. The waiter went away; the foreigner waited; the group at the next table waited. Presently the waiter reappeared bearing upon a platter an enormous rum omelet, surrounded by a halo of blue flames. That was the last straw.

"To the pumps, men!" shouted Peters.

And, like gallant volunteer firemen,
they grabbed up the seltzer siphons
and put out the fire.—Saturday Evening Post.

Handicapped.

Sam Snedeker, commissary keeper in an Alabama mining camp years ago, heard Robert G. Ingersoll lecture and forsook his belief in a place of fire and brimstone thereafter. It wasn't a week before he recanted.

"A grown man can't handicap himself that a-way," Sam said. "Where in
— and — was I to tell that dadrated nigger Luke of mine to go when he got shiftless?" — New York Post.

Hot Stockings.

A large engineering firm in England
received an order written in Russian,
and, although the manager had a pretty fair knowledge of the language, there were two words in the order that he was unable to translate. Somewhere in the works, however, a real Russian was employed. They brought him into the office, and he read the letter carefully, but was still puzzled by those two words.

Literally, he explained, their meaning was "hot stocking," which seemed absurd, but was presently seen to be the nearest known Russian synonym for "fire hose."
